Complete Development of Mississippi Valley With 54,000,000 Population

By H. H. MERRICK, President Mississippi Valley Association

The Mississippi Valley association has been formed to draw the people of the twenty-seven states in the great basin together and to supply them a medium through which to join forces and work all for one and one for all. Today there are 54,000,000 people in the region we call the great valley. There are great cities, factories of every kind, and there is the equipment necessary to the carrying on of practically every enterprise required. That this power will be sufficient to assure the valley's complete development, is evidenced in the fact that 54,000,000 population represents in excess of one-half the voting strength of the entire country.

My own state of Illinois is new investing some $50,000,000 in building locks and a nine-foot channel connecting the Great Lakes with the Mississippi, and before long all the ports of the Great Lakes, as well as Chicago, will be moving freight by water to and from shipside at New

The transportation line of low resistance in the valley is north and south, not east and west. The Mississippi Valley association is devoting most of its time and attention to the removal of the artificial obstacles that have been placed in these north and south channels in the interest of the east and west route, and it is succeeding.
